STANDING

UNCHANGED

No Votes Counted This Week but Several Thousand Issued

Contestants Working Hard and the People Taking Interest

Owing to the fact that The Parker Mercantile Co. was closed for invoice the votes cast in the piano contest were not counted this week and the figures will stand as last week. A large number of votes were cast last Thursday and Friday after the votes had been counted and are now in the ballot box and will be counted next Wednesday. Also there have been several thousand votes issued on a account of subscriptions to the Advocate which have not as yet been deposited but the girls are working just as hard and by next Wednesday will have a large number to drop in the ballot box which may change the standing of the contestants all the way round. Watch for the announcements next week, there will be new names on the list and you never can tell who is going to win. Help your favorite win this beautiful $400.00 Duell Piano. It is a beauty and is guaranteed for 25 years. It does not cost you anything to vote, so why not help your friend win it? Parker's are selling their goods at the same old prices and the votes are given free with every purchase amounting to 25 cents or more. They also give votes at the rate of two votes for each one cent paid on accounts made prior to January 1st, 1912. Get in line and trade with The Parker Mercantile Co. and subscribe for the Advocate $1 per year—1000 votes for each $1.00

Rules Governing the Contest

Rule 1.—This contest is open to any lady, child, church, Sunday school or lodge, and will run approximately six months.

Rule 2.—The votes will be counted every Wednesday evening at six o'clock by a disinterested committee appointed by the contest managers, and the results published in the Mountain Advocate the same week.

Rule 3.—No employee of the Parker Mercantile Co., or the Mountain Advocate will be allowed to enter in this contest.

Rule 4.—Any candidate whose vote fails to increase in two weeks at any time will be dropped from the contest and their votes thrown out and not allowed to count for any one.

Rule 5.—No votes will be allowed to be solicited by any candidate or any of their friends inside the store of the Parker Mercantile Co.

Rule 6.—Votes will be given on all purchases amounting to 25 cents and upwards at the rate of one vote for each one cent of purchase, or 1000 votes for each $1.00 paid either on back subscription, renewal or paid in advance subscription to the Mountain Advocate. Or 200 votes for each one dollar paid on all accounts made at the Parker Mercantile Co., prior to January 1st, 1912.

Rule 7.—All votes must be deposited in the presence of one of the contest managers, and must be voted upon a ballot furnished for that purpose alone and countersigned by a representative of the Parker Mercantile Co., or

ROBERT W. COLE

Mr. Cole was on last Saturday appointed Trustee of the Jury Fund of Knox County, succeeding John A. Black. He is cashier of the First National Bank of this city, and is also Treasurer of Knox County having held this office for more than a year.

Chas. D. Cole, as editor of the Mountain Advocate.

Rule 8.—All votes must be deposited at the time of purchase and must remain in the possession of the Parker Mercantile Co., until the contest closes, and no votes will be allowed to be transferred from a retiring candidate to any other contestant or any one.

Now is the Time To Subscribe

A man who was too economical to purchase or to subscribe for a paper sent his little boy to borrow the copy taken by his neighbor. In his haste the boy ran over a $4 stand of bees and in ten minutes looked like a warty summer squash. His father who ran to his assistance and, failing to notice a barbed wire fence, ran into that, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a $4 pair of pants.

The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence and got into the cornfield and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, the wife ran out, upset a four gallon churn full of rich cream into a basket of kittens, drownding the entire litter. In her haste she dropped a $25 set of false teeth. The baby, having been left alone, crawled through the spilled milk and into the parlor, ruining a brand new $20 carpet. During the excitement the oldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the dog broke up eleven setting hens and the calves got out and chewed the tails off four fine shirts.

DOINGS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The work of the State Senate and Legislature is going slowly along with very little work being done so far worthy of mention.

Senator Goodworth has introduced a "Good Roads Bill" which was referred to the committee on Public Roads and Highways and Senator Eaton introduced "The Direct Primary Election Bill," which was also referred to a committee.

The name of Hon. Wm. F. Parker appears on five important committees, namely:

Public Libraries; Public Health; Public Roads and Highways; Racing Commission; Ways and Means.

When it is considered that the Legislature is overwhelming

Democratic, it will be seen that Mr. Parker was highly complimented by being placed on such important committees as the Public Roads and Highways, and Ways and Means.

Mr. Parker writes that he is giving his best attention to the Good Roads, Better Schools, and Fair Redistricting bills.

On last Saturday a bill was introduced in the Senate giving Knox and Whitley Counties each a representative should this bill become a law. Whitley will be in District No. 6 and Knox in No. 18.

Dante's Inferno Here

A rare treat is promised the lovers of literature on tonight and Saturday evening at the Union College where will be presented for the first time in this part of the State, Dante's Divine Comedy Classic, "The Inferno."

As one gazes upon this wonderful masterpiece of Moving Picture Art, it can hardly be realized how such a gigantic task was accomplished.

When the idea of reproducing this noble but exceedingly difficult work was first suggested it met with a storm of objections and criticism. It was pointed out that such a task would cost several thousands of money, that there were only a dozen artists living to whom the principal parts in the production could be safely entrusted, that many of the scenes in Dante's "Inferno" require animals such as a peacock, a lion, a wolf, serpents, etc., that it would be impossible to show such pictures the difficulties of the descending from one pit into another and such things as frozen lakes, ponds of boiling pitch, or such images as that of Cerberus, or the demons, or the giants, or Lucifer, etc., beyond the possibilities of the moving picture. Nevertheless, the same men who were inspired by a wish to bring the charms and beauties of Dante home to the great masses, undertook the work and kept at it with a patience and perseverance which could not be discouraged. After many failures and after months had been spent in this endeavor two or three scenes were at last successfully filmed. These scenes were among the hardest in the entire book and they were shown to the most prominent Dante societies throughout Europe and to most of Europe's leading Dante societies. The doers were so changed in to enthusiastic helpers and the office and the studio of the Milano Film Company became a center for painters, sculptors, musicians, scholars, poets and authors, all lending an eager aid to the completion of the work so courageously begun.

COURT NEWS

Several Important Cases Tried This Week.

Special Judge I. H. Therman, of Springfield, on Bench

This week's term of court was presided over by special Judge I. H. Therman, of Springfield, Ky., on account of Judge Sampson being employed as an attorney for the defense prior to his election as Circuit Judge, in the case of John Williamson indicted for murder. This case was tried on Monday and Tuesday, the case being given to the jury late Tuesday afternoon. The jury could not reach a verdict and after having the case until Thursday noon were dismissed.

The case of Ino. M. Tinsley & Co. vs. J. M. Wilson & Co. in which the plaintiff made motion for an injunction restraining the defendant, as mayor, from calling for the election of a successor to Dr. J. S. Lock as councilman of Barbourville before passing upon the election and qualification of I. M. Tinsley, was begun Tuesday afternoon before special Judge Therman who decided that it would have to be tried out on its merits. No decision had been reached at the time we go to press.

In the important cases tried last week Jas. Taylor, charged with having carnal knowledge of a female under 16 years, was convicted and his penalty is from 10 to 20 years in the penitentiary.

In the case of Frank Henson charged with murder of Jas. Gray, at Elys, there was a hung jury, 11 men standing for conviction and one for acquittal.

Lee McKisley (colored) who together with another negro, overpowered deputy jailer Davis, and escaped, but was captured by Andrew Mitchell and returned to jail was tried for robbery and given from 2 to 10 years.

Ladies Aid Entertains

In the Sunday School room of the First Methodist Church the Ladies Aid gave their annual spelling match Wednesday evening and if you were not present you missed a treat. The Sunday School room has been refurnished and nice comfortable chairs have taken the place of the old seats formerly used. The floor has been carpeted and painted and a new gas stove installed. A large crowd was present and everybody eager to begin. The captains were chosen and the lines soon formed. Prof. B. C. Lewis was chosen pronouncer. The Blue Back Speller was used, being the property of Hon. Caleb Powers, from the Knox County Library.

The contest was close and interesting and the result announced as a "tie". When all the spellers had been exhausted it was agreed that the captains come forward and spell to decide it. Mr. Ashley's side won the prize which was a large, delicious cream pie. Now if you unfortunately failed to be present this year remember it is the custom of the Ladies Aid to give one every year in the month of January, and be on hand next time and do not forget to review some of the hard lessons in the old time spelling book.

On the fourth page of this issue appears a full page display statement of The H. T. Hackney Co's showing their business for the year 1911, and increase over year 1910; also showing the increase each year in their business since its establishment in 1891. This is one of the oldest and most reliable wholesale grocery houses in the south and their steady increase and prosperity in business is due to their progressive, hustling and honest methods of conducting their business. It is a custom of this company to, at the beginning of each year have published a statement showing the amount of business done by them during the previous year and last year showed an increase of $55,248.91 over the year 1910, or the largest sales any year since their establishment.

Bein' An Editor.

Most anyone can be an editor. All the editor has to do is sit at a desk six days out of the week, four weeks of the month, and twelve months of the year and "edit" such stuff as this:

"Bill Jonts of Cactus Creek let a can opener slip last week and cut himself in the pantry."

"A mischievous lad of Picketown threw a stone and struck Mr. Pike in the alley last Tuesday."

"John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell striking himself on the back porch."

"While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise from the church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green several times on the public square."

"Isaiah Trimmer of Running Creek was playing with a cat Friday when it scratched him on the veranda."

"Mr. Fong, while harnessing a broncho last Saturday, was kicked just south of the corn crib."

Progress in Wireless Telegraphy

Marconi rejoiced when, in 1897, he succeeded in sending a wireless message a distance of three miles. By 1907 he had established regular wireless communication across the Atlantic. Since then vessels have been "picked up" at sea from shore stations at distances of from 2000 to 4000 miles. In November last Marconi sent a message from the Coltano Station, in Italy, to the Glace Bay Station in Nova Scotia, 4000 miles. The San Francisco operator, a month earlier, covered for a period of fifteen minutes with the Japanese station on the Island of Hokusai, a distance of 6000 miles. Wireless communication, it is expected, will be opened up between Italy and Argentina with the completion of the new station at Buenos Ayres. The air line distance between these stations will be 7000 miles. The installation of wireless apparatus on ships is being gradually extended. Until recently few vessels outside of warships and steamers of the liner class have been so equipped. Now various countries are by legislation compelling many smaller passenger-carrying craft to install such apparatus. Great Britain is reported to be planning the establishment of a chain of wireless stations to encircle the Globe. This is to be a subsidized system under the control of the Post Office Department. Such a chain of stations would give England wireless connection with her colonial possessions in various parts of the world, making her independent of cables, which are liable to be cut in time of war.—American Review of Reviews for Jan.

A butcher's sign out West reads as follows: John Jacobs kills pigs like his father.

One advertisement was headed: "Two sisters want washing." So do a great many brothers. Another advertisement was: "Wanted—a boy to sandpaper."

A tailor had a bill in his window to the following effect: "Wanted several thin coat makers." This is a fine chance for spare tailors.

Don't be a Tumbledown Take the Farm Journal

MANY a farmer will tell you he never knew how much bigger crops he could raise until FARM JOURNAL put it into his head to work more with his brains.

This great little paper is always nudging farmers up to make more money. Pleasant but persistent, it works at you year after year to raise larger crops, finer horses and cows, heavier hogs, bigger apples and potatoes, and shows you just HOW to do it.

FARM JOURNAL ("cream, not skim-milk") is 34 years old, and has over 750,000 subscribers, more than any other farm paper published. Its four million readers (known as "Our Folks") are the most intelligent and prosperous country people in the world, and are always saying FARM JOURNAL helped to make them so. It is clean, brief, "boiled down," full of practical wisdom, gumption, fun and sunshine. It believes in order, thrift, kindness, comfort, and happiness, and it has a old Peter Tumbledown always ready to show how NOT to run a farm.

"Our Folks" have comfortable homes, modern buildings and machinery, tight roofs and fences, gates that swing free, sound horses, well-dressed and happy wives and children, and money in bank. Their potatoes are the largest, their milk tests the highest, their hogs weigh most, their fruit brings the best prices. Live farmers everywhere find this out, and they want the FARM JOURNAL.

Subscribe now, and get with the paper any of these famous

Money-making Secrets.

These great illustrated booklets are all stories of success in farming, and they tell you the METHODS that won it.

Poultry Secrets is a unique collection of the secret methods and discoveries of successful poultrymen. It gives Felch's famous moulting chart, suppressed for years, the Curtis method of securing 50 per cent. more pullets than cacklers, Boyer's method of insuring fertility, with priceless secrets of raising, feeding and feeding, how to produce winter eggs, and many others of great value long jealously guarded, now first published.

Horse Secrets exposes the methods of "bushopping," "plugging," "cocking" and "padding" and other tricks of "gypsies" and swindlers. It enables any one to tell an unsound horse. It also gives many valuable feeding, training, breeding and veterinary secrets.

Corn Secrets is the great NEW hand-book of Prof. Holden, the "Corn King." It tells how to get ten to twenty bushels more per acre of corn that is rich in protein and other valuable stock-feeding elements. Wonderful photographic pictures make every process plain.

THE MILLION EGG-FARM tells how J. M. Foster, in the New Jersey pine-land, made over $17,000 a year, by only from eggs. If you keep chickens, read about the "Kaneocas Unit" and learn how Foster FEEDS his hens.

THE "BUTTER BOOK" tells of seven cows that produced half a ton of butter each per year (20 pounds is the average). An eye-opener for dairymen. Get it, weed out your poor cows, and turn your good ones into record-breakers.

GARDEN GOLD shows how to make your back-yard supply you with fresh vegetables and fruit, how to cut down 5 per cent. grocery bills, and get cash for your surplus produce. It tells when and how to plant, cultivate, harvest and market every kind.

DUCK DOLLARS tells of the great Weber duck-farm near Boston. Every year they sell over 40,000 ducklings at a net profit of 50 cents each. Tells why ducks pay their bills better than chickens, and just HOW they do everything.

Any one of these splendid booklets, both for $1.00

(And if you subscribe NOW, before they go off price, and tell us where you saw this offer, we will send you also Foster's "Lucky Old Land's" great almanac brought down to 1912, packed with wit and wisdom for the farmer.)

To Speak in Michigan

Representative Caleb Powers is to take the stump in Michigan on Lincoln day. February 12 he will speak in Grand Rapids on "The Mountain People of Eastern Kentucky," and on February 13 and 14 he will speak at Jackson and Albion in the interest of the re-election of Representative Wedemeyer. This is the Congressman who made speeches for Powers.

W. H. Moore Visiting Here

W. H. Moore, of Perth, N. Dakota a former citizen of this city, is here on a visit to his parents and other relatives. He has been gone from here a little more than three years and has been attending his farm of 360 acres and also the 360 acres belonging to T. P. Faulkner, which is only a short distance from the railroad and reports that the country is developing fast and predicts a brilliant future for that section.

Closed for Invoice

The Parker Mercantile Co., closed their doors for invoice last Friday and completed the task Thursday, opening their doors again on Friday. The stock of this company amounts to nearly $30,000 and this is one of the largest Mercantile establishments in this part of the State. They are enjoying a generous share of the public's patronage and propose to continue to conduct their business as in the past, giving a square deal to all.

Coal Notes

In spite of the severe weather conditions development work in the Harlan coal field is progressing rapidly. Several days ago, an inspection trip was made by general officials of the Louisville & Nashville Railway from Louisville. First Vice President W. L. Mapother and Third Vice President A. R. Smith spent a day at the extensive works of the Wisconsin Steel company near the present terminus of the Washtoto & Black Mountain Railroad and later inspected the branch now being built out, Clover Fork to the 10,000 acre tract recently leased by The Sneed & Meguire Coal Company of Louisville. With the party were Mr. L. W. Botts, of the Columbia Trust Company, and several other business men. It is understood that all expressed themselves as optimistic regarding the great coal field which is now being opened up.

The firm of Sneed and Meguire is represented by Mr. L. W. Farmer, of this city.

Jack Johnson is considerably riled at some of the officials of New York because he thinks he is being discriminated against. Why don't you try Kentucky, Jack, if you don't like it up east?

The Pool of Flame

Copyright 1909, by Louis Joseph Vance
SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The story opens at Monte Carlo with Col. Terence O'Rourke, a military free lance and something of a gambler, is dressing for appearance in the restaurant below when the sound of a girlish voice singing attracts his attention. Learning out on the balcony he sees a beautiful girl who suddenly disappears. He rushes to the corridor to see a neatly gowned form enter the elevator and pass from sight.

CHAPTER II.—O'Rourke's mind is filled with thoughts of the girl, and when he goes to the gaming table he allows his remarkable winnings to accumulate differently. He notices two men watching him. One is the Hon. Bertie Glynn, while his companion is Viscount Des Trebes, a noted duelist. When O'Rourke leaves the table the viscount tells him he represents the French government and that he has been directed to O'Rourke as a man who would undertake a secret mission.

CHAPTER III.—At his room O'Rourke, who had agreed to undertake the mission, awaits the viscount. O'Rourke finds a mysterious letter in his apartment. The viscount arrives, hands a sealed package to O'Rourke, who is not to open it until on the ocean. He says the French government will pay O'Rourke 25,000 francs for his services. A pair of dainty slippers are seen protruding from under a doorway curtain and the viscount charges O'Rourke with having a spy secreted there.

CHAPTER IV.—When the Irishman goes to his room he finds there the owner of the mysterious feet. It is his wife, Beatrix, from whom he had run away a year previous. They are reconciled, and opening the letter he had received, he finds that a law firm in Rangoon, India, offers him 100,000 pounds for an Indian jewel known as the Pool of Flame and left to him by a dying friend. O'Rourke tells his wife that it is in the keeping of a friend named Chambret in Algeria.

CHAPTER V.—O'Rourke is forced to fight a duel with the viscount. The latter is wounded and is worsted in the combat and acts the poltroon.

CHAPTER VI.—The loyal wife bids O'Rourke farewell and he promises to soon return with the reward offered for the Pool of Flame. He discovers both Glynn and the viscount on board the ship which takes him to Algeria.

CHAPTER VII.—Chambret has left Algeria and O'Rourke has to gain a military detachment going across the desert to reach his friend. As he finds the latter there is an attack by bandits and Chambret is shot.

CHAPTER VIII.—Chambret dies telling O'Rourke that he has left the Pool of Flame with the governor general of Algeria. He gives the color of a diamond ring at the sight of which he says the official will deliver over the jewel.

CHAPTER IX.—O'Rourke is attacked by Glynn and the viscount who ransack his luggage, but he worsts them in the conflict.

CHAPTER X.—When he arrives at Algeria the Irishman finds the governor general away. He receives a note from Des Trebes making a mysterious appointment.

"You damned ass!" he stammered, all but incoherent. "You sit there and—gloat, damn you! When all the time we've got the upper hand!"

"Be quiet!" interposed the viscount. "I won't!" raged the honorable. "He thinks himself so infernally clever! What 'd'you say, you Irish braggart, if I told you you'd never see the Pool of Flame again?"

"I'd say," returned O'Rourke, "that you were either lying or a fool. In either case a fool. If, as ye seem to be trying to make me believe—which I don't for one instant—ye have succeeded in stealing the Pool of Flame, I'll hunt the pair of ye to the ends of the earth, if need be."

He eyed them reflectively during a moment or two made interesting by Glynn's desperate attempts to blurt out indiscretions against the prohibition of the viscount; something which the older man enforced crudely by clapping his hand across the Englishman's mouth, as well as by whispering savagely in his ear.

"But there'll be no need," continued the Irishman, when Glynn was calm. "Let's consider the matter dispassionately, presupposing that ye have the stone. Well, what then? Ye dare not attempt to sell it—would result in instant detection. It would not pay ye to have it secretly cut up into smaller stones—the loss in value would be stupendous, the whole not worth your while, as I say. Ye cannot take the Pool of Flame (don't get excited: I'm not going to tell ye where) to claim the reward, for ye don't know where to go. 'Tis a white elephant it would be on your hands."

"It does not seem to strike monsieur that there are other ways of finding out who offers the reward," the viscount suggested icily.

"I can see ye wandering around asking somebody please to relieve ye of the Pool of Flame and pay ye a commission. I wonder how long ye think ye'd last. But 'tis no use trying to hoodwink me: I'll wait until I find out the truth before I bother myself with ye."

Their persistence in hinting that they had gained possession of the ruby perplexed and discomfited him. He did not believe it; 'twas inconceivable; yet—he had known stranger things to happen. Still, without a clue, to have stumbled upon the secret, to have made off with it from under the very nose of the Governor-General—No! It was not reasonable to ask him to believe all that.

Nevertheless, when he arrived at Algiers, his anxiety had grown so overpowering that he called a cab and desired to be conveyed post-haste to the Palace de la Government.

CHAPTER X.

It was high noon when O'Rourke drove up before the Palace of the Governor-General. Weary, dusty and travel-stained as he was, he hesitated no instant about sending in his name and requesting an interview with the representative of France's sovereign power.

Disappointment awaited him at the very outset; disappointment in the shape of word that his excellency was away. But the name of O'Rourke was one well and favorably known in the province, and secured him an invitation to ascend to the Governor's office and state his business—if he cared to do so—to the gubernatorial secretary.

Upon consideration he accepted, and a little later was seated in a broad, low, cool room in the old Moorish palace, the affable secretary—a young, lively and engaging Frenchman—sollicitously sounding him as to his errand.

It was obviously the office of a man of great affairs, presenting an eminently business-like look for all its Oriental setting. To one side, set in the solid masonry of the wall, was a massive safe with doors ajar, exposing a cavity well stocked with documents. It occurred to the adventurer that such a safe might easily have been the place of security selected by the Governor-General for anything he held in trust. He built upon it a theory whilst he listened—nor lost a point—and replied to the secretary.

The latter regretted excessively that his excellency was absent; his excellency would undoubtedly be desolated when he returned and found he had missed Colonel O'Rourke.

"He'll be back soon, monsieur?" "Alas, no!" with a shrug. "He is en route for Paris—possibly arrived by this moment—on matters of state."

"And he left?" "Several days since, monsieur."

"You know nothing of this package, indorsed with the name of Monsieur Chambret?" To the contrary: the secretary knew it very well. He could place his hand upon it at any moment—monsieur would appreciate that he durst not surrender it without the Governor's authority.

O'Rourke drew a long sigh of relief and was abruptly conscious of fatigue and a desire to get away and rest.

"I'm obliged to ye," he said slowly, rising. "I'll have to wait until the Governor returns, I presume. . . . By the way, are ye by any chance acquainted with Monsieur le Vicomte des Trebes?"

A great certainty; the viscount was a great friend of his excellency's. He had dined with his excellency something over a week since, just prior to the latter's departure.

"And I take it ye have seen nothing of the gentleman since?"

"On the contrary, monsieur: the viscount called here but two days ago."

It appeared that he had desired some trifling information, with which the secretary had obliged him.

"Ye didn't happen to leave him alone in this room?"

The secretary, plainly much perplexed by this odd catechism, admitted that such had been the case; the pursuit of the desired data had necessitated his absence from the Governor's room for a matter of some ten minutes.

"But ye say ye can put your hand on this package?"

"But certainly, monsieur."

"Would ye mind making sure 'tis safe. 'Twould save me a deal of waiting, perhaps—"

With alacrity and a smile that depreciated his visitor's anxiety over so trifling a matter, the secretary rose, went to the safe and confidently enough thrust a hand into one of the pigeon-holes. A frown of bewilderment clouded the secretary's face. "It must be here," he announced with conviction. "It was in plain sight and labelled with the name of Monsieur Chambret. . . . He turned. "If Monsieur le Colonel will but return in half an hour, I undertake then to show him the packet itself. I shall by then have found it—but assuredly!"

"Ye are very courteous, monsieur. I will return."

This he did—in two hours. The packet had not been found; the secretary, in a flutter of nerves, confessed that through some culpable negligence it must have been misplaced. An extended search was even then in progress. It would surely come to light before evening.

The Myers Patent Mop Wringer

This Mop Wringer is the only machine ever invented that will wring and clean a mop thoroughly. It not only takes out the dirt and leaves the mop clean, but it wrings it so dry that there is hardly any moisture left in the mop. The floor is never left streaked, as you can see by using a clean mop. The machine is very simple to operate and requires no skill, as anybody can use it, man, woman or child. It is a labor saver, as one person will do the work of two or three men with any other device known. The mop sits on the platform and is not attached to the machine and can be moved at any time. It is always ready for use and there are no parts to get out of order. A trial of our machine will convince you that its work is perfect. We have yet to find a dissatisfied customer.
